

HOLBY PAIN

A MUM whose son committed suicide because he was impotent convinced Holby City bosses to highlight the condition in tonight's episode.

Depressed IT specialist Christopher Lane, who died aged 31 in 2008, developed the symptoms after suffering a head injury in a fall from a tree when he was only seven years old.

Mum Joanna, 62, wrote about the condition to the BBC1 show's writers – and they agreed to base an episode around it. She said: "My hope is that some good comes from his death through spreading awareness."

SUN 17 May 2011